

Design of control philosophy for natural gas liquefaction process

송기욱, 진정우, 한중훈*
서울대학교
(chhan@snu.ac.kr*)

Dynamic simulation has become increasingly important since processes become more complex and are designed and operated closer to the constraints. Including natural gas liquefaction process, dynamic simulation has been effectively applied to design and check new and existing control philosophy for the given process. Dynamic model constructed using ASPEN HYSYS is used to assess the effectiveness of alternative control schemes.

This research was supported by grant from the LNG Plant R&D Center funded by the Ministry of Land, Transportation and Maritime Affairs (MLTM) of the Korean government.